Series Summary

An operatic retelling of the Boxer Rebellion, framed through the archetypes of Chinese legend. The warrior, the maiden, the matriarch, the court noble, the trickster, and the heavenly general — all collide in a city where old ways and modern powers clash. Tragedy is inevitable, but spirit endures.

Style & Tone

- Operatic: Ritualized choreography, symbolic colors, stylized narration.
- Poetic: Interludes with verses framing each act.
- Archetypal: Characters embody roles from classic legend (Monkey King, White Snake, Three Kingdoms).
- Spectacle: Burning cities, flowing robes, blood and fire rendered as myth.

Characters

The Warrior (Li Wei): Archetype of Monkey King energy — mischievous, scrappy, fighting against destiny.

The Maiden (Meilan): Archetype of White Snake or Butterfly Lovers — tragic love, sacrificial, but cunning.

The Matriarch (Madame Xu): Operatic Guanyin-like presence, bridging mysticism and survival.

The Court Noble (Prince Duan): Archetype of Sima Yi — ambition and betrayal personified.

The Trickster (Insider): Fool who sees the truth, comic and tragic.

The Heavenly General (Colonel Harrington): Not demonized, but a celestial archetype — proud, relentless, overwhelming.
